MORGAN, WOLFE WON'T SHARE IN FEDERAL GRANT

Nearly All Eastern
Kentucky Counties
Get Jobless Funds

Morgan and Wolfe counties will not share in the $200 million released by the federal government Monday to fight unemployment, but most Eastern Kentucky counties will get some of the funds. The grant was allocated by the Department of Labor as part of a $1 billion appropriation made for the current fiscal year under the new Public Services Employment Act, enacted earlier this year by Congress.

And Kentucky's share of $3 million has been apportioned among counties and cities where unemployment is highest. The Kentucky funds will be used to aid the jobless in nine urban areas where unemployment is highest and in 40 rural counties where unemployment is high, most of them in Eastern Kentucky, it was announced in Washington Monday.

Governmental units in areas designated to receive the funds have until Oct. 5 to submit proposals outlining how the money is to be used. In Kentucky's case, the state government will act as agent for the 40 rural counties, but the jobs will be created in the county governments.

Kentucky's unemployment rate for June was reported to be 6.7%, but specific figures for each county were not available.

Although the grants for counties will provide only a few jobs in each county, the amounts in many instances are substantial percentages of the annual budgets.

The nine urban areas got nearly $1 million of Kentucky's share, and the 40 counties got approximately $2 million, apportioned as follows—

Bath, $32,900; Bell, $143,400; Breathitt, $28,900; Breckinridge, $34,300; Caldwell, $84,000; Carter-Elliott, $71,200; Clay, $36,700; Clinton, $27,300; Edmonson, $64,500; Estill, $90,400; Floyd, $79,500; Graves, $129,200; Grayson, $78,400; Greenup, $53,000.

Also, Harlan, $84,900; Jackson, $63,700; Jessamine, $39,100; Johnson, $42,800; Knox, $46,000; Lawrence, $28,100; Leslie, $36,900; Letcher, $32,400; Lincoln, $78,400; Lyon, $37,700; Magoffin, $67,700; Marion, $42,800; Martin, $33,700; McCreary, $33,700; McClean, $47,100; Also Nelson, $61,600; Owsley, $25,100; Perry, $41,800; Pike, $128,500; Powell, $35,300; Pulaski, $44,300; Rockcastle, $47,100; Rowan, $60,200; Russell, $36,700; and Wayne, $83,200.

Autopsy Confirms Car Killed Blaze Man September 11

State Police Detective Alonzo Hensley said Wednesday that a preliminary autopsy report received earlier this week confirmed that a blaze man found dead near Wrigley early Sept. 11 died of injuries sustained when he was run over by an automobile.

There had been speculation that William Bruce Perry, 21, may have been beaten to death and his body thrown from a car onto KY-711. But Hensley said preliminary findings by Dr. McCellen at St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington, indicated that death occurred when a vehicle ran over his body.

Hensley said the incident is still under investigation and that officers still are looking for a hit-and-run driver. However, he said that thus far there are no leads in the case.

The investigation is being conducted by Detective Hensley and State Trooper Burton.

Wells Hill, Index To Be Included In Expanded Systems

West Liberty's city council has filed application with the Economic Administration for a grant and loan totaling $2,440,000 with which to rebuild and expand its water plant, sewage treatment plant and build new water line and sewer lines to areas not now served by the city systems.

The application went to EDA last week, and this week C. E. Haupt, head of the Kentucky EDA office in Lexington, said parts of the proposed projects may be eligible for grants under the Accelerated Works Projects now being approved in Washington as emergency measures.

The complete package includes — a new water intake and treatment plant to be built up river from the present plant, a new sewage treatment plant, the building of a water line to index to serve the new high and vocational school, the building of additional water lines to Wells Hill to serve the new West Liberty Area Hospital and additional residential areas in that section, also the building of sewer lines to the new hospital on Wells Hill and to residential sections in that area.

Included also is a plan to build a secondary sewage treatment plant in the Index area two miles west of West Liberty to serve the new county high school and also be available for proposed industrial sites in the Index-Caney Valley area.

The possibility that certain of the projects may be applicable for funds from the new Accelerated Works Program, caused the city and Gateway Development District this week to order preliminary surveys and contours for the new water intake and treatment plant and the new water and sewage lines to Index.

Accordingly, the E. V. Treadway & Associates Surveying Co. of West Liberty commenced making the preliminary surveys Wednesday. The engineers are working near the mouth of Twenty-Two Hollow where it is proposed to build the new water intake and treatment plant. Later they will make preliminary surveys for water and sewage lines to Index. These are the projects which Mr. Haupt suggested might be applicable for emergency grants.

The $2,440,000 application follows the city council's action on Sept. 3 that declared the city's water and sewage systems as being "obsolete, overloaded and in poor repair," and giving authorization to Gateway Development District to apply for federal funds for the renovation and expansion of the systems.

BLUE DEVILS SHINE ON DEFENSE BUT FAIL TO CATLETTSBURG, 16-6

Devils Will Meet Johnson Central At Home Friday

Defense was the name of the game and senior tackle Gary Dye blocked a Catlettsburg punt early in the third quarter and end Cliffie Smith felt on the piskin in the end zone to give the Morgan High Blue Devils their only score of the evening last Friday as the Wildcats downed the Devils, 16-6, at Catlettsburg.

Though picking up 11 first downs and penetrating twice inside the Wildcat 10-yard line, the Blue Devils were stymied on four sustained drives by the tough Wildcat defensive line.

Inability to connect on long-yardage passes was the main problem with the Devil offense. Coach Ed Zarembo commented later, but had highest praise for his team's defensive performance, particularly in the second half of play.

Catlettsburg's standout halfback, Mike Spaulding, scored both of the Wildcats' TD's in the first half, crashing over from nine yards out in the first quarter and scoring again from the 2-yard line late in the second. Fullback Dave Spaulding ran both conversion attempts to make the score 16-0 at the half.

Though unable to sustain any kind of a drive from scrimmage, the Devils were tough on defense all evening. Early in the second quarter, end Jeff Brown picked up a Wildcat fumble on the Wildcat 35 yard line and ran it back to the 8-yard line. Runs by halfback Terry Risner and fullback Johnny Tate put the ball on the one-yard line, but the Devils were unable to score.

The determination of the Devil defensive line became apparent on the first series of downs in the third quarter as the Devils quickly put the Wildcats in the hole, forcing them to punt from behind their own 14-yard line. Gary Dye, crashing in from tackle, blocked the punt, and end Cliffie Smith put the Devils on the boards by covering the ball behind the goal line. Quarterback Greg Phillips pass to Jeff Brown was incomplete, and the score remained 16-6.

The Devils remained sizzling hot on defense throughout the remainder of the evening, throwing the Wildcats for sizeable losses on each series of downs.

Coach Zarembo said it was the Devils' best defensive game of the year and had praise for tackle Gary Dye, "who probably played the best game of his career," and linebacker Jeff Johnson and end Cliffie Smith, "who turned in fine defensive performances."

Coach Zarembo urged fans to turn out for the Devils' home game Friday evening against Johnson Central, coached by former MCHS Coach Bruce Howard. Johnson Central, though boasting a poor win-loss record, led powerful Pikeville for three quarters Saturday night before succumbing, "which means they're plenty tough," Coach Zarembo pointed out.

"Sure we want to win this one," he commented, "and plenty of support from fans in the stands can mean a lot to our boys." Game time is 8 p.m. at the MCHS athletic field.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY—

PROOF OF AGE IN ADVANCE EASES MAKING SOCIAL SECURITY CLAIMS

People who may soon be eligible for social security benefits can make the claims process easier by getting their birth certificates or other proofs of age in advance, according to Thomas B. Thompson, social security district manager in Ashland.

Proof of age is a key factor in processing claims for social security benefits. Birth dates and relationships also must be established for dependents entitled to benefits.

"A birth or baptismal certificate recorded before your fifth birthday is usually adequate proof of your age," Thompson said. "But if either document is registered in a distant State of foreign country, it's advisable to send for a copy well ahead of when you'll need it."

"If a certificate was filed when you were born," he said, "social security can tell you how and where to write to apply for a copy."

If a birth or baptismal certificate is used as proof of age for social security, the document must be either the original or a copy certified by the records custodian, according to Thompson.

"If you can't get either a birth certificate or a baptismal certificate," he said, "proof of age may be developed from family Bibles, marriage records, school records, Federal census records, or other documents."

People who are otherwise eligible for social security retirement benefits need proof that they're 65 to collect full benefits — or that they're 62 or older to collect reduced benefits.

"You also have to show you are 65 or older to be covered by Medicare, which is administered by social security," Thompson said.

Children need proof of birth date and relationship to the worker involved if they are eligible for benefits.

"These children may collect monthly social security benefits until they're 18 — or until they're 22 if they remain full-time students and unmarried," Thompson explained.

"A phone call in advance of a visit to the social security office will always help," reminded Thompson. The Ashland number to call is 325-7666.

CANDIDATES OUTLINE POSITIONS ON 2 ISSUES VITAL IN EAST KENTUCKY

New issues are cropping up in Kentucky politics this year. And two of the new issues are of more or less vital interest to Eastern Kentuckians — control of strip-mining, and continuing the community college system.

Here's how the four candidates for Governor say they stand on these two issues as reported by The Courier-Journal —

Strip-mining

CHANDLER — "My position is regulation, yes; abolishment no. I mean proper and reasonable strict regulation. We've got coal commitments to the TVA (Tennessee Valley Authority), and if we don't furnish coal to the TVA, TVA loses power and light bills go up. I don't have sup or sip with the coal people, so don't get me wrong. I have no commitments from them."

EMBERTON — "It's my position that strip-mining should not be permitted except on land that can be adequately reclaimed. I feel that we need to look to new methods of reclamation." Emberton said he believes strip-mined land could and should be reclaimed in some areas to build new airports and industrial sites.

FORD — "Where the land cannot be reclaimed, it shouldn't be stripped, and where it can be reclaimed, we must have rigid enforcement of the law. I've said that since June 1970."

SMITH — "My position on strip-mining is this: If we can come back and clean up and restore the land so it won't cost the taxpayers anything, I would let them do it. But I would prohibit strip mining from anywhere near a scenic area, like Cumberland Falls or Cumberland Gap.

Community Colleges
It has been proposed that the state's community college system be taken from control by the University of Kentucky. Would you be for or against this?

CHANDLER — "I'm responsible for the organization of community colleges in Kentucky. I would let them stay as they are now (under UK). The community colleges are getting along fine."

EMBERTON — "I wouldn't advocate any change in the community college system for its existing structure." FORD — "I'm flexible on this. Whatever is necessary to see that the community college system works properly and provides quality education, I'm going to be for. I would be very hopeful that this could be worked out among the academics without getting into the political area."

SMITH — "I would be for covering the ties of all our community colleges with the University of Kentucky."

READER DISTURBED BY CLAIM THAT WASHINGTON NOT FIRST PRESIDENT

(EDITOR NOTE: A letter came to Mrs. Roy Cecil of Hazel Green this past week from Mr. George Phipps of Lancaster, New York in which he enclosed an article which he had clipped from a newspaper there and which seemingly he had been somewhat disturbed by. He asked that Mrs. Cecil answer this article personally in the Wolfe County News. The article, entitled "George Washington Was Not The First President of the United States," was written by Senator Charles Mathias of Maryland. Mrs. Cecil's answer follows.)

"Since I, a former editor of the Wolfe County News, do not pretend to be as illustrious or learned a person as one of our United States senators, it would be ridiculous for me to say Senator Mathias' article is incorrect. But I made a visit to the Hazel Green Academy library and looked up all I could find on John Hanson in several volumes of encyclopedia and in none of them is the statement made that John Hanson was first president of the United States of America.

"One set of encyclopedia had this to say: (quote) John Hanson, 1715-83, President of the United States in Congress Assembled in 1781-82. First president to serve one year term under the Articles of Confederation, but his duties were merely those of a presiding officer. (unquote.)

"World Book Encyclopedia had this to say: (quote) John Hanson 1721-1783, was an early American patriot. He signed the Articles of Confederation; but only after the states had ceded their Western lands to the national government. He was an early supporter of the American cause against Great Britain. Born in Maryland, he helped draft instructions for Maryland's delegates to the Stamp Act Congress. He signed Maryland's non-importation agreement of 1769 and advocated fighting Great Britain. Draft Extension Bill Is Approved

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — After months of delay the Senate passed and sent to the White House Tuesday the bill extending the military draft until June 23, 1973.

Passage of the bill by a vote of 55 to 30 came with surprising suddenness after the Senate by just one vote had invoked its antifilibuster rule to limit debate.

President Nixon's signature, expected promptly, will enable the Selective Service System to resume draft inductions halted when the old law expired last June 30.

Another major section of the legislation calls for a $2.4-billion military pay increase intended to improve chances for creating all-volunteer armed forces by mid-1973.

The Senate's action was a major victory for the President and a defeat for anti-war senators who had held out for something stronger than the measure's call on Nixon to negotiate an end to the Indochina war as quickly as possible.

STRIP-MINERS— They LEARN IN APPALACHIA, AND THEN GO WEST

(THE NEW YORK TIMES)

If plans for the New West now being nurtured by the coal-mining industry should succeed, they may well reverse the population trend of a century and send Americans scurrying back to the Old East. A Times survey indicates unmistakably that, unless a dangerous course is arrested, the shabby desolation of strip-mined regions in Appalachia will be reproduced on a monumentally larger scale from New Mexico to the State of Washington.

The attractiveness of strip-mining—to the coal companies—is obvious and understandable. Operating costs are about one-quarter those of deep mining, the process is less hazardous and productivity per man is five times as great. Western coal beds, moreover, contain 77 per cent of the country's economically stripable reserves—much of it of the low-sulfur variety now in demand by electric utilities subjected for the first time to air pollution restrictions. Above all, this low-sulfur coal is the greatest potential source of natural gas, capable of replacing wells which now produce this cleanest of fuels but which are due to run out in the next fifteen years.

The consequence of these advantages is that mining leases on public lands have for some time been disposed of with a lavish hand by the Federal Bureau of Land Management. Largely ignored is the price to be exacted along with the coal by the mammoth earth-moving equipment that has replaced the miner's pick. Stripped mountainsides, "spoilbanks" of uprooted earth, streams silted up and poisoned with acids, trees and grass swallowed up in man-made "badlands"—these are the features of a countryside despoiled by this process.

Hearings on the whole question of strip mining are scheduled in the House of Representatives early this fall. Proposals range from the Administration's bill to require that the states set reasonable standards for reclaiming abandoned mining sites to the effort by Representative Ken Hechler of West Virginia to outlaw strip mining altogether.

The hearing should open the eyes of Americans to the ravages this practice has already involved and its imminent threat to the grandeur of the West.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREABOUTS

COAL IS 48% STRIP COAL—Latest figures from the Bureau of Mines indicate that about 48% of all coal produced last year in America was strip-mined. And by the end of this year it is estimated that stripping will account for more than half the mined coal. And as strip-mining supercedes underground mining, more miners lose their jobs.

BURLEY OUTLOOK—Dr. Robert Rudd, head agricultural economist at the University of Kentucky, predicts consumption of cigarettes will continue to decline slightly, due majorly to excessive state cigarette taxes being imposed by nearly every state. The health scare also will hurt a little, but not so much as in the past, Dr. Rudd thinks. Burley exports also may decline, he said. Burley growers, under the new poundage program, may now lease additional allotments enough to make a 15,000 pound allotment. But this is not large enough to justify buying the new $6,000 tobacco harvester, and Dr. Rudd thinks the leasing limit of 15,000 pounds should be increased.

C & O INCOME JUMPS—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, one of the nation's major coal-hauling railroads, had income of $314 million the first half of this year, up from $461 million for the same period last year. Per share net income jumped from $2.60 for the first half of last year to $3.25 for the same period this year.

MORE DIVERSIFICATION—Railroads now are beginning to diversify. Last week the Illinois Central agreed to acquire Midas International for $75.2 million, and only the week before the railroad had commenced negotiations to acquire International Brands.

REMARKABLE—In the current economic situation, there is every reason to anticipate big increases in production, says the Wall Street Journal. Big industries already had trimmed the fat off their operating budgets during the 1969-70 recession, and now with 27% of their productive capacity idle during the first half of this year, it is clear that they are in a top position to increase production at cheaper per-unit prices. Thus they stand to make substantial gains in profits if the present situation develops into a major upturn. Maybe that's why Ford Motor Co. president said last week that the President's move to restrict wages and price freedom will "get our national economy out of deep trouble, and in the end everybody—business, labor, consumers, taxpayers, all of us—can benefit."

LOOKING FOR FARMS—Landowners who have to give up their homes along Paint Creek in Johnson county because of the Paint Creek Dam already are searching for new homes. Some are prospecting for small farms in this county.

Morgan soon will have dams all around, on all sides, then Morgan really can be "the Bluegrass County of the Mountains, an oasis in a welter of reservoirs. Let's keep Morgan green."

MORE MINING JOBS—James Branscome, executive director of Save Our Kentucky (SOK), says shifting from a strip mining to underground mining would add some 6,630 new (mining) jobs in Kentucky. It would take that number of new miners just to produce the amount of coal now being strip-mined, he said. SOK says a recent survey shows that most Eastern Kentucky residents are opposed to strip-mining—probably between 70% and 90% are anti-strip-mining if alternatives could be spelled out. "With national energy needs rising, Kentucky may well become a wasteland unless strip-mining is stopped," said Branscome who noted that 120,000 acres were under permit to be stripped last year. And if it is more jobs Kentucky needs, there could be lots more jobs if strip-mining companies would use smaller trucks to haul the coal to loading sites instead of the 30-ton tandem trucks that weigh up to 90,000 pounds when loaded and crush the surfacing of roads. Smaller trucks would provide more jobs for truckers and save the highways at the same time.

SALE PROCEDURES BEING STUDIED AS BURLEY AUCTION TIME NEARS

By James R. Russell
Courier-Journal
Farm Editor

With the 1971 burley tobacco marketing season only little more than two months away, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) officials are ironing out the procedures for the crop's first sale under the poundage program.

State and Federal ASCS representatives say that many of the past procedures will still apply, but all agree that the most crucial part of the program will be an accurate warehouse weight.

Under the poundage system, the ASCS spokesmen point out, marketings in excess of 110 per cent of a farm's quota are not eligible for price support. These overmarketings are subject to a 54-cent-per-pound penalty and subsequent quota cut the following year.

ASCS officials said last week that records and reports which will be used this year will be substantially the same as in the past. Plastic marketing cards, showing the amount of tobacco which is eligible for price support and which is free of penalty (110 per cent of the farm's poundage quota), will be issued for each farm.

Homer Yonts, executive director of Kentucky ASCS, said that marketing cards will be mailed to farmers in early November. He added that a certificate signed by the farmer that DDT or TDE insecticides were not used on the tobacco must be on file in the county ASCS office before marketing cards will be issued.

The marketing cards will be delivered to the warehouse when the tobacco is weighed in and will stay with the warehouseman until the tobacco is sold (or removed).

"Hot tobacco," or what ASCS officials are calling pounds in excess of the farmer's 110 per cent quota, may cause a problem by piling up on the warehouse floor. But, ASCS feels that it's the farmer's responsibility to remove his excess tobacco immediately to avoid price penalties and subsequent quota cuts.

ASCS spokesmen stress that the selling tobacco directly on another farmer's marketing card is a violation, and in such cases, both card holders' quotas will be reduced by the pounds involved in the illegal transaction.

2 HELD IN ROWAN ON DRUG CHARGES

MOREHEAD, KY.—Two out-of-state youths arrested here Sept. 12 after being trailed from Lexington on drug charges, were ordered held to grand jury. They are John Wilbur Wells, II, 20, of Newark, Del., and Steven Goulding, 18, of Chambersburg, Penn.

They have been held in Rowan county jail on default of bond for possessing dangerous drugs. Officers found a half-pound of marijuana and several hundred capsules thought to be LSD in their possession. They were trailed here after officers became suspicious when they became highly concerned at the temporary loss of a flight bag after their flight to Lexington.

Country Roads

The fellowship of country roads is a goodly one, and in that fellowship one can find lifelong comrades, passing acquaintances and a wisdom that can be gained, perhaps, in no other way. It is the wisdom of fields and woods, compounded by the observing eye and the understanding heart; and it is a wisdom that does not grow old, that lasts until a man's hiking days are done, and then it brightens many a fireside hour.

PICTORIAL HISTORY—"Kentucky: A Pictorial History" is to be published Oct. 28 by the University of Kentucky Press. The unique history is being issued to help celebrate Kentucky's 200 years of statehood. Some 200 historians and leaders spent two years selecting the 620 photographs, paintings, drawings, maps and engravings that best picture the state's interesting history. Many of the reproductions are from rare prints and paintings, and 145 are in full color. The book, with 9 x 12 pages, will sell for $7.95, and a paper bound edition will cost $4.95.

FHA Wants Rural Water Wells Tested

The Farmers Home Administration's Morgan County office last week mailed notices to all homeowners with FHA home loans urging them to have their water supplies tested.

Pointing to reports that individual water supplies are becoming contaminated at an ever-increasing rate, FHA has made arrangements with the Morgan County Health Department for homeowners to have their water supplies checked.

Home owners who have received the notices should go to the health department where they will be given a special container in which to put some water from their wells for testing. Health Department personnel will explain the procedure.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

LOOK MAGAZINE QUILTS

Look, the well-known news-picture magazine, announced last week it would cease publication with the Oct. 19 issue, and cited mounting costs, including soaring postal rates, as the reason. Gardner Cowles, who founded Look in 1937, said the magazine had lost $10 million in the last two years, and that the end became certain when fourth-quarter advertising revenue failed to meet expectations. Postage increases would have raised Look's $4-million-a-year mailing costs to $10 million a year in the next five years, and Cowles denounced the new rates as "a complete reversal of the policy in America since the days of Benjamin Franklin," and predicted there will be quite a few casualties among other publications in the next few years. He predicted a brighter future for Life, the other news-picture magazine, started by Henry Luce a few months before Look was founded. Subscriptions of Look were parceled out among other magazines, including Life, Readers Digest, and Time. Cowles said it appeared the country could only support one such magazine as Look and Life.

STEEL FROM JAPAN—The Wall Street Journal reports that steel exports from Japan to America increased 52.6% in July from a year earlier, reaching 2,263,600 tons in July. And much of Appalachia's coal is hauled to Atlantic ports for shipment to Japan with which to make the steel. There would be very little concern in our country for a possible shortage of coal for energy needs if so much were not exported to Japan. And there would be fewer acres in Appalachia ravaged by strip-mining and fewer roads destroyed by 90-ton trucks hauling the coal to loading points. A major reason that an energy shortage which some say threatens America is because of the export of coal to Japan.

TALC CAUSES CANCER

Science has learned recently that asbestos can produce cancer when breathed into the lungs or swallowed. But science has just learned why the Japanese people have so many more incidences of cancer of the stomach than any other people. They use talc, a product of asbestos, with which to polish their rice.

CAVE RUN RESERVOIR

Col. John Rhett commanding officer of the Louisville district Corps of Engineers, said this week he expects Cave Run Dam on Licking will be built high enough by the spring of 1973 to impound the recreational pool. Contractors have raised the cofferdam from a height of 696.6 feet above sea level at the time of the May flood to a height of 705 feet by last week, and Col. Rhett expects the height to be 721 feet by winter. He said, "If we have enough dry weather to continue moving earth at the rate we are moving it now, the lake in front of the dam should be impounded in the spring of 1972 for recreational use."

MORE SUBSCRIBERS

The Courier during August received 56 NEW subscriptions to be delivered by mail, and so far this month we have received 32. Slowly but surely, the Courier's list of subscribers is growing ever larger and larger. Nearly two-thirds of the papers we print are delivered in Morgan county, and most of the rest to former residents and soldiers away from home.

IN TOP JOB—A Boyd county, Kentucky young man, Dr. John C. Greene, heads the Division of Dental Health in the U. S. Public Health Service. He graduated from the Dental College of the University of Louisville in 1952 and went into public health to help pay debts he had incurred to go to college. And he stayed, and now is director of his division. Right now his division is embarking on a program to fight periodontal disease, known popular as pyorrhea and clinically as periodontitis. It's an erosive condition of the gums and tooth-supporting bone, and for adults is the single biggest cause of tooth loss, more important even than decay. Greene estimates that 60 per cent of the nation's young adults and 80 per cent of the middle-aged suffer from periodontitis. Dr. Greene, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Greene of Rt. 1, Ashland, is an authority on the disease. In 1957 as a consultant to the World Health Organization, he went to India where the disease is rampant. Dr. Greene says America itself is "a nation of dental cripples." He said if the Health Service can develop a national dental-care program for all children, this country could within two generations in effect say, "Look, Mom, No cavities."

LETTER TO EDITOR

Licking Valley Courier
West Liberty, Ky.
Sir:

The cry of the people is to place the power of government into the hands of the state and local officials.

The example I'm citing here will typify what could be done if they would exert that power. I'm speaking about the issue on overweight truck violators escaping penalties.

The first twenty years of my life were spent in Morgan County and I now live in Johnson County on Route 17. Therefore, I claim interest in both counties.

You often hear people refer to "The Good Old Days." Well, traveling over Route 172 through these counties certainly means stepping back into the past instead of going forward toward what we call "Progress."

We owe this to the county judges and the magistrates of these districts.

Twenty some years ago I walked eight miles a day to high school (dirt road, you know). Through the years came progress to the rural areas: first, a gravel highway, electricity, telephone and finally a hard surfacing on the road. This in turn, brought about changes in our school system—centralization for our county school with modern means of transportation.

Today, these overweight coal trucks are destroying twenty-seven miles of hard surface road and I'm telling you come winter most of these people living here will be walking or staying home. This creates a hardship as many from this area commute daily to work. I'm not against the coal industry. I admire anyone who works for a living. However, I am bitterly opposed to this destruction and breaking of these laws in this manner.

Our judges and magistrates have it in their power to take these overweight trucks off this highway and force these violators to haul within the weight limit. School buses meeting these oversized and overloaded trucks are too much for this narrow road. I'm hoping something will be done before tragedy strikes.

So, come on County Officials—do your duty as you were sworn to do. This will make you more trustworthy in the eyes of the public and help you to attain and hold other offices in your future if you so desire.

Don't pass this problem on to the state when it can and should be solved locally.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mary Ellen, Ison

Thousands of mushrooms...

After pickers make daily rounds...

MUSHROOM MINING

Beneath the earth's surface in Carter County lies a 65-acre farm—once a rock quarry—changed in 1968 into a Kentucky mushroom farm.

Within cold, damp walls, 50,000 pounds of mushrooms are shipped weekly to a cannery in Kelton, Pa. They await their future as a tasty sauce for steak, a spice for pizza or a can of soup.

ENGLISHMAN JOHN SHAW MANAGER FOR MUSHROOM FARM IN CARTER

By Dave Thompson
State News Bureau
FRANKFORT, Ky. — A long, winding, rocky road in Carter County leads to one of the most unusual farms in Kentucky.

The road, which begins beside the Lawton general store, takes travelers to a huge tucky Mushroom Farm.

mine, once a rock quarry, but now the home of Ken-

Eventually, there will be three farms in this 65-acre underground fantasy, but for the present, only 15 acres are being used.

Kentucky Mushroom Farm is an affiliate of Oxford Royal Mushroom, Inc., of Kelton, Pa. Alfred Fortugno, head of Oxford Royal, was scouting Kentucky and surrounding states in 1967 for an ideal mushroom-growing site and came upon the then completely flooded mine.

After setting a drainage system in the cave, Fortugno attended a mushroom convention in Germany where he met John Shaw, from Manchester, England.

Fortugno invited Shaw to come to America and serve as manager of the farm. "After looking the place over and seeing the potential here, I agreed," Shaw said.

Shaw majored in agriculture in England, and after receiving a degree, became interested in mushroom farming. He became the manager of KMF in 1969.

Asked how he likes Kentucky, Shaw smiled and said, "There's no place like home."

But I can't figure out why Americans don't eat more mushrooms.

"In Europe, the average consumption of mushrooms per person per year is four pounds. In the U. S., it's only about 1 1/4 pounds per person."

Kentucky Mushroom Farm received a $199,800 loan from the Economic Development Administration for expansion. Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans presented a check to a company representative at the University of Kentucky late last month.

The expansion, says the EDA, will permit an increase in the work force from 86 at present to 191 by 1974. All 86 now employed by KMF come from the Carter County area, making the firm the largest employer in the county.

The Kentucky Industrial Development Finance Authority (KIDFA) will invest $36,800 and Olive Hill Development Company will add another $16,650. Oxford Royal will provide $36,800 and the farm will meet the $333,000 total cost of the project with $42,950.

The funds were made available under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

Kentucky Mushroom Farm isn't the biggest mushroom operation in the U. S. — an aboveground farm near Pittsburgh has that distinction — but they do ship out more mushrooms weekly than most farms in the U. S.

Shaw said 50,000 to 60,000 pounds are shipped weekly by truck to Oxford Royal in Kelton, Pa. "There's about 40 mushrooms to a pound," Shaw added.

The growing process takes about three weeks but once the storage trays are placed in the cave, mushrooms can be produced for 100 to 150 days before replanting.

Microscopic spores from the gills of the mature mushrooms are planted in a test tube and mused with special food until they grow into a vigorous mycelium or spawn.

The spawn is placed in gallon jugs of sterilized rye grain and left to multiply in an air-conditioned room. In two weeks, the spawn is matured, packaged and held under refrigeration until actual planting.

The wooden beds in which the mushrooms are raised are filled with compost received weekly from Churchill Downs and Latonia race tracks. The compost is placed in sterilization and pasteurization rooms at 140 degrees for six hours. The spawn is planted and three weeks later the beds are placed in the cave.

KMF uses about 250 tons of compost each week.

The first mushroom was planted in June 1968 and the first shipment to market was made on Christmas Eve that year.

On a tour of the 50 subterranean acres not now in use, Shaw pointed out one site which was used by a church as a baptismal. "There's nothing living in the cave," said Shaw. "We've already cleaned out the vacant area and have it ready for use."

The all-female picking crew makes rounds seven days a week to each bed, twisting and picking the best plants. The mushrooms are then graded and sorted before being sent to market three times a week.

The plants are hand-picked because there's no machine that can tell when the mushrooms are ready.

Mushrooms, which comprise the biggest cash crop in Pennsylvania grow rapidly in the cool atmosphere of the cave. The temperature is perfect because of its constancy—always between 58 and 60 degrees. Mushrooms can double in size in 24 hours there and once they begin sprouting, they grow to full size in three days.

Shaw said the loan would enable the company to hand-make an additional 13,000 growing beds, bringing the total to 25,000.

"People could kill our operation," said Shaw, "so we don't conduct tours."

The Englishman thinks nothing of eating a freshly-picked mushroom raw, but for the cooks he said it is best to boil mushrooms for five minutes before preparing.

He didn't give any recipes but hinted that deep frying the mushrooms ("just like you do french fries") gives a very tasty dish.

NEWSPAPER BEST FOR ADS AND NEWS, ACCORDING TO SURVEY

Persons who want to read about events which interest them, want more details on complicated stories or need advertising they can trust turn to newspapers rather than television, the Bureau of Advertising said Wednesday.

The bureau, in a booklet entitled "News About the News Media," said the statistics on public use of the media were obtained in a probability sample of 2,025 men and women 18 years old and older. The study was done by Opinion Research Corp.

The bureau said newspapers were favored by persons with higher education and better incomes. Newspapers were also favored three-to-one for advertising facts that can be trusted, the bureau said.

The booklet said 50 per cent of all respondents to the questions named newspapers as the medium in which they would be most likely to find details about stories in which they are interested, compared to 46 per cent to those who named television. The bureau said the figure rose to 56 per cent for those with high school diplomas. Among those with family incomes above $10,000 the figure was 55 per cent.

For complicated news, 36 per cent of the respondents named newspapers as the preferred medium compared to 19 per cent who mentioned television.

In reply to the question about where they might find advertising to give them the facts they need, 34 per cent replied newspapers and nine per cent named television.

The U. S. Court of Appeals in Philadelphia has upheld the Labor Department's right to obtain more than $900,000 in back pay, including interest, for some 2,000 women employees of the Wheaton Glass Company of New Jersey. The money represents underpayment of wages to the women in violation of the Federal Equal Pay Act.

The Act says that men and women doing substantially equal work under similar conditions in the same establishment must receive equal pay.

ODDS AND ENDS

By Earl Kinner, Jr.

A reader of Publisher Norman Allen's This Town That World column in the Floyd County Times submitted to Mr. Allen the following solution to the existence of mercury in fish. The idea is to stand the fish on its head in the freezer, then when it's cold enough the mercury will drop and all you have to do is hack off the fish's head and put him in the skillet.

This clipping from an Indiana newspaper came across our desk recently: "Perhaps we are wandering outside out field a bit but the irrationality of the fantastic sums being paid to star players for signing up with professional basketball teams disturbs me. When a college sophomore is signed to a pro contract for more than $2 million, something is wrong with our national sense of values. . . . There's much more to these highly publicized million-dollar contracts than meets the eye, tricky qualifying clauses and other limitations. Nonetheless, the effect is unwholesome. An absurd premium is put on the physical skills of young men for the promoters' benefit. These excesses in professional sports are a symptom of a perversion of values in our country. Widespread acceptance of the anything-for-a-buck attitude is a distressing trend, carrying seeds of danger."

DEMS HEAR PLEAS FOR PARTY UNITY LAST WEDNESDAY

More than 100 Democrats attended a campaign rally at the courthouse last Wednesday evening, and heard exhortations by party leaders to forget inter-party differences and unite their efforts to elect Democrat candidates at the November general election.

Speakers included State Rep. Joe W. Haney; Circuit Court Clerk Walter Franklin; Woodford F. May, Democrat candidate unopposed for State Representative in the 71st district; Mrs. Henry Ray Perkins, acting chairman of the Morgan County Women for Ford Committee; State Sen. Joe D. Stacy, candidate for re-election in the 27th senatorial district, and Sanford Kelly.

Calling for party unity, Walter Franklin reminded those present that the Democrat party has not elected a U. S. Senator in Kentucky in many years. And referring to the Republican victory in the last gubernatorial election, Franklin pointed out that the "Democrats" are about to become the minority party in Kentucky.

Both Woodford May and Rep. Joe Haney predicted a Democrat victory in November if party members put differences aside and work together. However, May said, "I'm surprised that there aren't any more people here." He disagreed with comments he said he'd heard about "there being good party harmony." "If there was, there'd be more people here," he commented.

Senator Joe Stacy likewise pleaded for party harmony, and urged all Democrats to work together for the election of the State Democratic ticket. "I would much rather see our Democratic state ticket elected and lose my own race than to be elected along with the opposition ticket," he declared.

Winfred Howard, campaign chairman for the Ford-Carroll ticket, presided at the meeting. Another county-wide rally is set for Wednesday, Sept. 30.

MCHS MAYSVILLE FROSH IN 8-8 TIE

The Morgan County High freshman football team, composed of seventh, eighth, and ninth grade boys, traveled to Maysville Monday night for a game with the Maysville High freshmen.

The game, marked by a number of fine performances, ended in an 8-8 tie. Highlighting the Morgan County effort was an 80-yard touchdown drive in the fourth period that prevented the locals from suffering a shutout.

Gambin on a fourth down and long yardage situation, quarterback Hank Allen fired a 25-yard pass to end Steve Allen who hauled it in for the first down. And on the next play, Allen fired a bomb to Kim Lykins who galloped into the end zone for a TD. The play covered 60 yards and Lykins plunged over for the 2-point conversion to tie the score.

Coach Ed Zaremba singled out the performance of center Paul Edward Mays, who played against a varsity player for Maysville and did women service blocking for his teammates.

The MCHS freshmen will play Rowan County High's freshmen at West Liberty next Monday at 7:30 p.m. under the lights.

Anyone who grew up in the Kentucky hills well remembers the excitement of a visit to a neighborhood cane mill. Almost every farm had a cane patch as insurance for "sweetness" throughout a long winter, but not every farm possessed a mill.

Not owning a mill was not the calamity it might seem, for this made it necessary that farm families work together and provide a nucleus around which a community gathered for the long anticipated event.

Visiting a country cane mill is unlike any other experience. The season is early autumn when days are filled with sunshine, trees seem dipped in gold and even the air has a glitter about it as tiny dust particles reflect brightness like miniature mirrors.

The mill has been replaced by a gasoline engine (in this incidence a tractor's) but the molasses taste the same as they did when "Old Dobbin" pulled the mill. Morgan countians are preparing for the first annual Sorghum Festival, to be held at West Liberty Oct. 22-23, and smoke from cane mills in various parts of the county will be visible over the hills from now until frost. This mill, operated by Curt Adams, is in the Caneys section. Mr. Adams is shown above stirring the boiling cane juice.

Oct. 22-23 Is Sorghum Fest Time In West Liberty

By Helen Price Stacy
Ky. Dept. of Public Information
Frankfort, Ky.

For many years the late Walter Potter of West Liberty made country molasses at an old-time cane mill.

This time of year he could be seen surrounded by hazy smoke that curled from a hot wood fire beneath the metal evaporator pan as he used a long handled hoe-shaped rod to push juice, green from the stalk, from one channel of the pan to another until the juice, cooked to a thick golden syrup, was ready to drain into containers.

Morgan County is sponsoring its first sorghum festival in West Liberty Oct. 22-23 (Friday and Saturday) and though the veteran molasses maker will not be present his descendants will be helping out with a number of activities and should one take a hand at stirring the sorghum at the cane mill, he would surely use a deft touch with know-how gleaned from watching father and grandfather.

Visiting a country cane mill is unlike any other experience. The season is early autumn when days are filled with sunshine, trees seem dipped in gold and even the air has a glitter about it as tiny dust particles reflect brightness like miniature mirrors.

Here is a place where neighbors visit and talk everything from family, crops and politics to dogs, squirrel woods and religion. Children run in small groups, playing games and trying to push one another into the skim hole, a bowl-shaped excavation in the ground made to catch skimmings tossed from the cooking juice.

The late J. Monroe Gevedon of Grassy Creek, Ky., said Morgan County's first cane patch was grown in the mid 1800's from seed brought back from a visit with relatives in Bath County. The first grower shared his seed next year with his neighbors.

This same spirit of neighborliness will be evident in West Liberty during the Morgan County Sorghum Festival. It is part of twin festivals (the other is a spring event) designed to revive and preserve arts, crafts and traditions of the East Kentucky hills and also to provide a market for arts and crafts of county people.

During the festival downtown store windows will be decorated with antiques and winning windows will be awarded prizes. In addition to a cane mill on Main Street there will be a blacksmith shop owned by Graden N. Walter who will make horse shoes.

Walter also is parade marshal for a spectacular Saturday event, featuring high school bands, floats, horses, antique cars and Shriners with their steam engine and clowns.

West Liberty Elementary School on Wells Hill will be the location for a gathering of knife, gun and watch traders. Chairman is Harold Barber, West Liberty, biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Mrs. Boyd Blair and Mrs. Charleen Spencer, also of West Liberty, are chairmen of the festival and can supply information on any phase of the event.

All other activities will take place at the athletic field of Morgan County High School. The school grounds are accessible from Glenn Avenue, Presburg Street and Ruth Avenue.

Here large tents will be set up and the space separated into individual booths where co-unity craftsmen will display and sell wood carvings, braided and hooked rugs, appliqued and pieced quilts, knitted and crocheted afghans, novelties, ox yokes and singletrees, pillows, comforts, baby quilts, coverlets and garments and handmade clothing.

Mrs. Minnie Johnson of Cow Branch will have bonnets to sell; Melvin Profit will sell baskets; Arthur Barker and others will offer handmade rocking chairs, slat-back country chairs and stools.

Willie Fyffe will grind corn in two grist mills, and women of the United Methodist Church will sack the corn meal to sell. Women of the West Liberty Christian Church are making cookbooks with molasses recipes; other local churchwomen are engaged in festival projects, including food booths for hungry visitors.

A country store on the school grounds will offer shuck beans, dried apples, pickled beans and corn, fresh ground coffee, bolts of calico, gingham and lawn, canned goods and the like.

Area artists will exhibit and sell paintings on the school grounds, which will also be location for an antiques show and sale.

These are some of the many activities Morgan County is providing at the sorghum festival—oh, yes! There will be jars, jugs and buckets of molasses for sale as well as molasses products.

Mrs. Daisy Potter Johnson, West Liberty, a daughter of the late Walter Potter, is sewing long dresses for women to wear at the festival; Marvin Potter, a son of the old-time sorghum maker, has become adept at crocheting and will have crocheted garments for sale; Wendell Johnson, Jr., teacher at Emmeville, Ky., and grandson of the veteran at the cane mill, will continue another family tradition, that of making pottery at his handmade potter's wheel.

Remember the date and place—and you'll come.

COMMUNITIES ARE URGED TO BUILD "SHELL" INDUSTRIES STRUCTURES

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The need for existing buildings to meet the future of American industry has prompted the Kentucky Department of Commerce to recommend a "shell" building program to local communities in Kentucky.

According to Commerce Commissioner Paul W. Grubbs, there are only nine existing buildings left in Kentucky that can qualify as bona-fide industrial buildings.

"An example of a qualified existing building," Grubbs explained, "is the 40,000 square-foot new building at Radcliff.

This particular building, never occupied, has been shown to 35 different industries since it became available."

Buildings such as this are promoted through the Commerce Department by sending special brochures which describe each building to over 7000 corporations throughout

IN MEMORIAM
In Memory of Bertie Watkins.

By Martha Lewis

She's not really dead, but only asleep.

Her rest period just begun. Awaiting the time for Jesus' return.

To rapture his chosen ones. Her sufferings are ended, life's battles are gone. She held onto God by trusting his son.

A prayer warrior was she, her bible well read. A pillar to many these words truly said.

What compassion she had for the afflicted and sick. But with strong faith in God, help from him she would seek.

Those who loved her would come to her home night or day. Enjoying her company and a place free to pray.

So let us rejoice rather than weep. She told this world goodbye in Jesus doth sleep. She fought many hard battles in this world of ours. But she knew she could win by her fervent prayers. You'll not be forgotten dear sister of mine. You'll long be remembered for your spiritual mind. (pd.)

HOLLIDAY

By Harrison Holliday

Sept. 5 — Arnold Holliday has purchased a new iron gate for the Holliday Cemetery and we plan to have it installed soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holliday, who used to live in this community but now live in Alabama and work at a missile plant, came in to visit his mother, Mrs. Martha Endicott. While here he also visited Arnold, Charley, and Harrison Holliday and Bryan Lacy.

Some farmers are having to cut their tobacco crop when the plants are not ripe enough to cure out just right.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Holliday and son, Kevin, of Maine, Ohio came in early Sunday and gave their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Holliday, a surprise. They had not been in for awhile. They went home on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lena Rose and Daniel Hunt of Middletown, Ohio were in this section visiting Harrison Holliday and Sally Lacy last week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodford Oney and this is the first visit she has made here since she married Mr. Hunt. He works in Armo plant in their home town. They have one daughter who is two years old.

When we were in town Friday we met Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lewis of Stacy Fork, and Polly Hopkins of Matthew, who works at the Shoe Factory at West Liberty. When I taught school at Trace Fork she helped out in the cooking as several of her children attended school there. I also saw Walter Hopkins in town and he had children who attended school then.

KY. POWER BUILDING NEW OFFICE-GARAGE

PRESTONSBURG, KY. — Kentucky Power Company commenced work last week of building an office-garage building at the corner of Dingus street and US-23 here. Goodman & Preston of Pikeville is the contractor at a price of $129,566 for the one-story brick structure. The new power company office will have a drive-in window.

Marijuana Charge Referred To Jury

MT. STERLING, KY. — Montgomery County Judge Caswell L. Lane held a hearing last week for two Louisville youths men caught cutting hemp (marijuana) on a vacant lot in the Green Acres subdivision. Judge Lane bound Gregory K. Mason, 20, to the grand jury under $500 bond, but delayed a hearing for his younger brother, Richard, who said he was only 17 years of age. Testimony was offered by Homer Kemplin that he saw the two Louisville youths cutting "weeds" on a vacant lot in his subdivision. Green Acres, and called the sheriff's office. Two deputies arrested the two brothers as they left the subdivision and found 35 pounds of hemp in the trunk of their car. Judge Lane overruled a defense motion to dismiss the charge on grounds the brothers were not informed of their rights before being questioned.

Sept. 11 — In my news letter last week, 4 births were reported. In this letter I have 5 weddings to report. So here goes:

Vollie Gullett was married to Mollie Howard of Crockett one day last week. They are living at the bride's home at Crockett.

Then on Saturday, Sept. 4, Larrel's twin brother, Darrell Risner, and Miss Jeannie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Smith of Silverhill, had a beautiful wedding at the home of his parents, the James Risners. He is also survived by one grand-son, Auguste Lynn Hall, three brothers, Ellis Adkins, Fairborn, Ohio; Lenville Adkins, Rt. 3 West Liberty, Jimmy Adkins, Lenox; five sisters, Mrs. Leonard Mullins, Fairborn, Ohio; Mrs. Charles Holbrook, West Liberty, Ky.; Mrs. Charles Black, West Liberty, Ky.; Mrs. Ray Holmes, Ashland, Ky.; and Mrs. Leroy Allen, Fairborn, Ohio.

He was converted and added to the Lord's Church on July 18, 1971, and was very happy to be a member of God's Kingdom. In his passing the family has lost a faithful husband, father and brother. But we feel that our loss here is nothing to be compared with the joys that are his with the Lord.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday, August 30 with Elder Lenville Ball reading the obituary and offering prayer, and Rev. Arlie Nickell officiating. Burial was in Long Branch Cemetery with Herald and Stewart Funeral Home in charge.

A smile can add a great deal to one's face value.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Courier—

I wish to thank you very sincerely for the great publicity you gave our South-eastern Kentucky Homecoming Festival held in Booneville, Sunday, August 29. A great many Morgan County citizens were here and your native son, Dr. Charles B. Stacy was one of our judges in the State Wide VFW Beauty Pageant. Miss Helen Price Stacy from your own town wrote the news story for the major news medias of Kentucky, and your nationally televised RICHARD JETT MOUNTAIN SQUARE DANCERS was among the highlights of the entertainment features.

The LICKING VALLEY COURIER is a great paper, and we read it every week knowing that we will glean something new, something challenging, something worth while to us and for use in our own county newspaper.

Because of the great play given this event by your fine newspaper the attendance doubled, and this was the biggest homecoming affair we have had since the glittering affair was organized 6 years ago. Then too, this was the first time a Governor had officially taken part in our festivities. 44 lovely girls representing various VFW posts around the state vied for the title, "Miss Kentucky V. F. W. 1971."

We had hoped the Morgan County VFW would be represented with a girl, but perhaps next year they will have more time to find out about this event, and to help us promote it. The winner gets a week's free vacation to Florida, a free rental car, all free hair dos, free dinner and breakfast, and free tickets to all attractions in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, in addition to being met by the Greater Fort Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce and given a basket of fruit. The Mayor of Fort Lauderdale is declaring this "Miss Kentucky VFW Day, 1971" when lovely 19 year Kay Winn of Sanford, this year's winner arrives during the holiday vacation from the University of Kentucky.

In addition, Former Clay County Commonwealth Attorney Lester H. Burns, Jr. gave the winner a $100.00 U. S. War Bond, and many merchants in the area contributed generously toward showering her with gifts. The winner got well over $5000 in vacation, gifts and money. This event will be held again for the 1972 "Miss Kentucky VFW" on August 27, 1972. We urge Morgan County girls to enter this contest. Contact your local VFW Post for further information, or you may contact Mrs. Pat Sizemore, State VFW Coordinator for this affair. Her address is Mrs. Pat Sizemore, Box 278, Booneville, Kentucky 41314.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for giving us so much free space in your great paper. That is why our crowd doubled, and our program was bigger and better than any other year in its history.

More power to the LICKING VALLEY COURIER. May your great paper continue to grow stronger and more powerfully influential throughout Morgan County and all Kentucky is our prayer.

Your friend,
COL. T. C. Sizemore

By Soc Clay

If you're one of those people who doesn't care to hunt, or think a two-pound bass is worth fishing for, this piece probably won't interest you much. On the other hand, however, if you are one of those who enjoys a good squirrel or rabbit hunt in the mornings when a thin layer of frost covers the ground, and then likes to break out the old spinning rod a little later in the day when the sun has gotten up far enough to take the chill off the air, you just might be a little bit interested in what this piece is all about.

In my humble opinion, a fishing giant has been slumbering all summer long waiting for the chill of autumn to come creeping on a north wind over the hills of north-eastern Kentucky to settle on its waters that we have named the Grayson Reservoir. The fact is that the fishing in this 1500 acre lake that twists and turns through some of the most magnificent scenery Kentucky has to offer has been slow all year. Oh, there's been scattered catches of small bass from time to time but the thousands of bass that were caught last year and released because they were just a half-inch under the size limit have made their self scarce most of the time.

But never fear, those fish are still there and they are bigger than they were last year. Many of them will be up to the 16 inch mark and I predict that these two pound beauties that have such great fighting characteristics will come alive this fall and literally swarm to the shallows in search of that winter feed.

If you've ever fished for a two-pounder, you're probably already aware of the similarities between a bass this size and a twelve-year-old boy. They're medium sized, full of energy and are never in the place where they should be. These behavior patterns should cause some mighty fine eatin' this fall for anglers fishing the Grayson.

The winding, narrow hollows of this flood control lake provide excellent shallow bass habitat. The bass fisherman who likes to work a big fly rod bug around stumps, half submerged rocks and across shallow sandy points should have a field day this fall when the water temperature starts to go down. This is the time of the year when bass between 12 and 16 inches feed heavily in this area of Kentucky. It's a great time to work the surface with almost any kind of plug but I prefer the minnow-type such as the AC Skinner, Rapala and those shad look-alikes that have recently come on the market. You'll also find one of the most effective lures during this feeding period is the 1-M minnow lure in the shad finish. It's small and the hooks are even smaller, but for pure small bass fishing ability, it's got anything I've ever used beat all the way around.

September and October on the Grayson should also prove the best time of the season for exciting worm fishing. If the water is clear, you can almost see the bass dart out from behind one of the stumps along the shore and pick the worm up. Most of the time these fish will be under the two pound size but if you want to let the worm down along side some of the sheer rock walls that rise up out of the depths of the four-year-old lake, you just might latch on to some of those five and six pound beauties that were in the Little Sandy River long before the huge dam was constructed to form the picturesque Grayson Reservoir.

And panfish? Man, this 1500 acre pond is plum full of 'em. Slab-sided croppies are found in abundance around every tree top and blow-down. Even along the open shoreline anglers are finding croppies cruising the shallows in search of the next meal. And it's going to be hard to find a better bluegill lake. The bluegill and croppie fishing has been good all summer and should continue right on through the winter months. And if my guess is correct, the 'gills should be hitting near a pound in size by next spring and any fisherman can tell you what a pound-size bluegill on the end of the line feels like.

But, back to that hunting I mentioned earlier. Starting on the northeast side of the lake and extending over some 7,000 acres of prime grouse, deer and upland game habitat is the brand new Grayson Reservoir Wildlife Management Area that is open to the public for hunting during season. A pet project of Harold Barber, Chief Forest Game, Biologist for the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, this area should, in all probability, afford some of the finest hunting to be found in the entire state this season.

The area consists of heavily wooded hill land and cultivated bottom lands along the small creeks that run through the area. At the present time Barber is having some 200 acres of creek bottoms farmed by local farmers with the Dept.'s share left standing in the field for wildlife food. So far, all the farmed land is getting heavy use from whitetails, squirrels, rabbit and along the wooded edges, the ruff grouse is picking away at the downed cane-seed pods and the fallen corn.

The wildlife area supports a good population of deer and some of them are real busters. Two years ago, this same area produced a 22 point non-typical head for an Ashland hunter and several more trophy bucks have been observed in the area.

The entire area holds heavy populations of squirrel, rabbit and grouse with all three species being under-harvested in the past. The roads into the area are rough and Barber wants to keep them this way. Pickup trucks, four-wheel drive vehicles and autos that the owners aren't too particular about can be driven into the wildlife area if the weather is dry. Be careful if it's wet, you may be in there for awhile.

Primitive camping is permitted in the area during the hunting seasons but Barber urges all campers to take a short course in wilderness camping before they venture into the area. Such things as how to construct a wilderness latrine is vital to campers in the hunting area because there isn't anyone to come by and take care of you and your litter and other problems. If you go in there, Barber urges you to come out leaving the land clean. This is not a place for the weekend camper, he warns, just a place for the real sportsman to stay overnight on his hunt.

Probably the best way to hunt the area is by boat. Any point on the shore will be a good access to the hunting area and for that hunter-fisherman who wants to combine both sports, this is an ideal place to have it. Just be sure that you take along your own water and grub. There isn't anyplace on the east side of the Reservoir that you can get any kind of supplies.

Near-by Grayson has overnight accommodations and everything you might need in the way of hunting, fishing or camping equipment. The boat dock operations and bait stores can fill you in on the better fishing spots but the hunting will be up to you. The game is there, the fish are there and I can't think of a better spot to be this fall than the Grayson Reservoir.

MOREHEAD RAID NETS DRUGS, TWO ARE ARRESTED

MOREHEAD, Ky., Sept. 16 — Morehead experienced its first raid on illegal drug traffic since spring when State Police and Lexington detectives, armed with a search warrant, entered an east Main Street apartment Sunday night, arresting a man from Delaware and another from Pennsylvania.

A considerable quantity of drugs was seized, including several hundred capsules believed to be LSD, and a half-pound or more of marijuana.

Lodged in Rowan County jail after failing to execute bonds of $5,000, are — John Wilbur Walls, 20, Newark, Del.

Steven Coulding, 18, Chambersburg, Pa.

Neither are students at Morehead State University, but the raid was at an apartment at the intersection of East Main (U.S. 60) and the Christy Creek Road (Ky. 32) at Rodburn rented by a University student.

Arresting officers made no charge against the MSU student. It appeared that the arrests followed an investigation of illegal drug traffic at Lexington since three of the officers making the raid are Lexington Police Force detectives.

Reservoir Levels Will Be Dropped

The Huntington district U.S. Engineers has announced the drawdown of five Eastern Kentucky and Western Virginia reservoirs to prepare for the flood season.

Levels will be dropped as much as 32 feet and as little as five feet at Dewey, Grayson and Fishtrap reservoirs in Kentucky, and at North Fork of Pound and John W. Flannagan reservoirs in Virginia. Drawdowns are usual after the recreation season, the corps said.

He prayeth best who loveth best All things, both great and small.

Six In Morgan Family Attend MSU

MOREHEAD, Ky. — "Education is cheaper by the half dozen in our case," said Edwin Benton, of Caney, a graduate student at Morehead State University.

Benton, his wife, Hilda, and four of their five children are enrolled at Morehead State this semester.

A science and mathematics teacher at Morgan County High School, Benton is working toward his Rank I classification by attending night classes. He received his bachelor-of-arts degree in 1964 and his master's degree in 1969 from MSU.

Mrs. Benton, who works with the Kentucky Child Welfare Research Foundation in Morgan County, is taking courses to enrich her background in social work. She hopes to receive a degree in social work.

Oldest daughter, Joyce, an August graduate of MSU, is working toward certification as an elementary teacher. She had previously qualified for a secondary teaching certificate.

Lois, who is married to Raymond Lumpkins of West Liberty, and oldest son, Phillip, are elementary-education majors. Lois is a senior, and Phil is a junior. Second son, Joe, is a sophomore majoring in political science.

"Children saved earnings" — "We haven't found it financially hard for six of us to attend school at the same time," Benton said. "The children have saved part of their earnings from summer jobs, and they have worked on campus during the school year."

Phil is a work-study student photographer and Joe works for the MSU alumni affairs office.

Benton said that transportation to classes has not been a problem for the two-car family. Joe and Phil share one car on campus, while Mr. and Mrs. Benton and Joyce use the other car to commute.

"Although my wife and I have classes on different nights, we have always arranged to have a ride on class night," Benton said.

A firm believer in higher education, Benton is pleased that six members of his immediate family are in school. "We didn't plan it this way 22 years ago when Joyce was born, but we certainly are glad our children chose to continue their educations."

"Going to college seemed natural for me since my parents and older sisters attended MSU," Phil said. "We just had good examples to follow."

WIVES URGED TO FAMILIARIZE SELVES WITH FAMILY FINANCES

A wife's ignorance of the family's financial situation can lead to serious complications in the event of her husband's death, according to A. Kenneth Bunker, president of the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He advises wives to look into arrangements made for their future, citing statistics showing that, on the average, women live five years longer than men; and also that most wives are younger than their husbands.

"These facts," Mr. Bunker says, "support the point that a woman, likely to outlive her husband, should acquaint herself with family finances and prospects for survivors in the event of the breadwinner's death."

He poses some questions a wife can ask herself to test her knowledge about a situation she is likely some day to face:

Should your husband die, where would you look for his will, stock certificates, insurance policies and other valuable papers?

Do you have a list of his holdings? What about employee benefits or pension plans at his place of employment? Would you be eligible for social security benefits?

In what bank does he have deposits? How would you gain access to safe deposit boxes?

Would the mortgage on your home have to be paid or is it covered by mortgage insurance?

Who is his lawyer, his stock broker, his insurance man and his accountant?

Mr. Bunker advises wives who can't answer such questions to ask their husbands for the information. His advice to men is that, while it is admirable to make adequate provision for one's family, it is imperative that the wife be informed of these arrangements. Otherwise, much of the benefit of the financial planning may be lost.

Emberton Proposes Bounty On Pushers

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — GOP gubernatorial candidate Tom Emberton Monday proposed a bounty to be paid individuals who provide police with information leading to the arrest of drug pushers in Kentucky.

In disclosing this phase of his platform, Emberton called for new, enforceable legislation requiring elementary and secondary school pupils to be educated about the dangers of drug abuse.

He said the key to the problem is the elimination of the pusher and stressed the need for more training of law enforcement officials.

Allice Lloyd Students To Visit Day Care Centers In East Ky.

Pippa Passes, Ky. — In an effort to improve relationships between college students and local communities, the student council at Alice Lloyd College is undertaking a project which it hopes will benefit as many other people as possible. At 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, September 25, approximately 50 students will leave the campus at Pippa Passes to visit surrounding counties in an effort to raise $1,000 to purchase educational and playground equipment for the Rural Day Care Centers in Knott, Floyd, Letcher, Leslie, Perry, Magoffin, Johnson and Pike Counties. The students will visit with merchants and friends in nine cities, explaining the council project and asking for donations.

Besides trying to raise money, the students will also be doing volunteer work with the day care centers and with several schools for mentally retarded children in the area. They felt that the effort put into the drive would be much more rewarding to them if they participated personally in the work for which the funds will be used.

Engineers Raising Cave Run Dam Level To Avoid Flood Threat

MOREHEAD, Ky. — In an effort to avoid a repeat of last summer's near flood disaster, the U. S. Engineers, Louisville district, are raising a cofferdam at the Cave Run Dam construction site near here. Before winter, engineers are planning on raising the level to 721 feet above sea level—some 25 feet above where the Licking River crested last July. Engineers fought a nip-and-tuck battle when the river crested one foot below the top of the temporary dam. The following week the dam was built to its present height of 705 feet. Col. John Rhett said he hopes the dam and reservoir project can be finished by mid-1973—on schedule.

To all who are ill bereaved or shut-in a happy "Hello" and—Sadness comes and leaves its sting.

Shadows fall upon our way, Earthly trials are hard to bear But be happy — this is true, Friends about us really care And God will always see us through.

Our Stumblin' Stone

If one only wished to be happy, this could be easily accomplished; but we wish to be happier than other people, and this is always difficult, for we believe others to be happier than they are.

Lawrence Marijuana Extra-Growth Hybrid

LOUISA — A juvenile arrested on marijuana charges has been released on $10,000 bond, although jurisdiction in his case has been waived to a higher court. Two other men charged in the same instance of growing marijuana remain in Lawrence County jail without bond.

Junior C. Johnson, who will be 18, in October, was turned over to Lawrence Circuit Court by Juvenile Judge J. J. Jordan.

Thomas Doman, 22, and Robert David Copus, 24, both of Monroe, Mich., waived earlier in the week to the next term of grand jury.

Meanwhile, in a similar case in Johnson County, four persons charged with growing and harvesting marijuana found their circuit court suit delayed after defense attorney William Hazeltine filed a series of motions at the end of Thursday's court session. Acting Judge Eldred Adams said the case would be heard some time prior to the close of this current session. The date was left open so Commonwealth Attorney Eugene Rice could answer the motions.

Kentucky State Police reported the hemp plant grown in Lawrence County was an unusual hybrid and suggested some knowledgeable agriculturalist had aided in its culture. It's apparently about a third-generation mutation, and though it bears no seeds for reproduction, it grows much taller and the leaves are much closer together than normal cannabis," said Sgt. Morgan Elkins, one of two officers who made the arrest.
